

EVERY TWO SECONDS, SOMEONE'S IDENTITY IS STOLEN IN THE U.S.¹

If you're among the millions of American adults who have had their identities stolen, you know what a headache—and financial loss—it can be.

Consider:

- There were 16.7 million cases of identity fraud in 2017 resulting in $16.8 billion stolen.²
- 2017 marked the first year Social Security numbers eclipsed credit card numbers as the most breached piece of personal information.²
