

Angela S. Rieger

Board Member

Angela (Angie) Rieger joined the Thrivent Board of Directors in 2020. She serves on the Finance and Audit and Human Resource committees.

With her business leadership experience, Rieger helps ensure Thrivent and its workforce are well-positioned to help people achieve financial clarity so they can live with purpose.

Rieger is currently senior vice president, head of international wholesale at Lands' End. In this role, she is responsible for all international and wholesale efforts to drive profitability, improve market share and increase brand awareness. Prior to her current position, she held several progressive leadership roles at Lands' End, including senior vice president for planning and inventory, and senior director for planning U.S. direct. Earlier in her career, she was merchandising manager with The Douglas Stewart Company.

Rieger serves on the boards of Women in Retail Leadership Circle, Good Shepherd Lutheran Church, and Clean Lakes Alliance, and is a past board member of Doyenne and the Edgewood Athletic Association. She also is a mentor for Building Brave, which provides mentoring and support for women in leadership roles. She served on the regional board for the Thrivent Member Network–South Wisconsin Region (2014 to 2019), where she also was board chair.

Rieger earned a Bachelor of Science degree in organizational leadership from the Gies College of Business, University of Illinois–Urbana.

Rieger lives in Madison, Wisconsin, with her family and attends Good Shepherd Lutheran Church.
